SHORT CUTS

Candidates endorsed for Nov. 4 election

A list of endorsed candidates in Michigan for the Tuesday, Nov. 4, General Election can be found in this edition on Page 4.

Candidates are reviewed and endorsed by local councils of the Michigan Building and Construction Trades Council, based on their past or anticipated support of issues of importance to organized labor.

No friction for Momentum Index

There have been month-to-month fluctuations this year in U.S. construction industry employment, spending and job starts, reflecting owners' and contractors' uncertainty over the effect of tariffs, availability of workers and the overall direction of the economy.

But the fuzzier Dodge Construction Network's "Momentum Index" for U.S. construction has been fairly bullish on the nation's building industry. Dodge updates its index every month, and its Oct. 7 report said its Dodge Momentum Index had risen 3.4 percent in September, was up 33 percent during the course of 2024, and climbed 60 percent compared to September 2024.

"Planning momentum remained steadfast for data centers, healthcare, and public buildings throughout September and will correlate to stronger construction spending in early 2027," said Sarah Martin, associate director of forecasting at Dodge Construction Network. "After a prolonged period of uncertainty, owners and developers are advancing projects into planning, but activity is expected to normalize in future months."

The DMI is a monthly measure based on the three-month moving value of non-residential building projects going into planning, shown to lead construction spending for nonresidential buildings by a full year to 18 months.

CEO pay (it's up) is back on track

After two "uncharacteristic" years of decline in 2022 and 2023, the pay for chief executive officers of the 350 largest firms in the U.S. increased by 5.9 percent in 2024.

That's according to the labor-backed Economic Policy Institute, which faithfully compiles CEO pay levels every year to illustrate their salary disparities with everyday working people.

"The data show that CEOs are paid much more today than they were in the mid-1990s and many times what they earned in the 1960s or 1970s," said the EPI researchers. "In fact, realized compensation for CEOs is now 1,094 percent higher than it was in 1978. Over the same period, the pay for typical workers only increased 26 percent. As a result, the CEO-to-worker compensation ratio grew tremendously — nearly tenfold — from 31-to-1 in 1978 to 281-to-1 in 2024."

"Rising CEO pay does not reflect a rising value of skills or contributions to firms' productivity," the EPI said. "What has changed over the years is CEOs' use of their power to set their own pay. This is concerning since the earning power of CEOs has been driving income growth at the very top — a key dynamic in the overall growth of inequality."

Trades set course for new public safety HQ

By Marty Mulcahy

LANSING — The city's public safety workers and court employees wanted new, modern space to operate in.

And the city's voters granted their request in November 2022, approving a $175 million bond issue to construct new facilities. Approved were a new headquarters for the Lansing Police Department, new space for the 54A District Court, a relocated fire station, and a new jail for short-term prisoners.

Making all that happen now are the project management team of Christman Constructors and its subcontractors, architects BVK Group and Hobbs + Black, and building trades workers, who have been on the job for the past 12 months. The new Public Safety Complex is being built at 2500 S. Washington, about two miles south of downtown in an area centrally located for the entire city.

"It will be a new facility that is desperately needed, so we are very excited," said Lansing Mayor Andy Shor. "We think when it's completed it will be wonderful for our city. This couldn't be done without the voters of the City of Lansing. They agreed to support this with their own dollars; they know that we have to have the best police and fire, the best justice system, and this is going to accomplish that. We're going to do them proud with a facility that shows respect to our first responders and to our justice system."

A bit low, but still historic: 'Monumental' road repair funding OK'd in Michigan budget

By Marty Mulcahy
Editor

LANSING — In the end, passage of the new state budget on Oct. 3 didn't allocate an additional $3 billion per year increase in funding to fix the damn roads in Michigan. That amount was generally seen as optimum spending by independent studies and bipartisan lawmakers passing this monumental funding increase," said a statement from the Michigan Infrastructure and Transportation Association, which includes road-building trade unions and their employers.

"MITA staff would like to thank the entire membership for their support. The MITA PAC has never been stronger, and our grassroots efforts are through the roof, exemplified by the incredible showing for the (Sept. 3) rally at the Capitol.

"All of these things were major components to the success of this road funding package, and everyone should be proud of our efforts and of the industry as a whole. Politics is messy these days, and in a budget where virtually every area of state government got a cut, road funding got a historic increase."

The deal includes new long- and short-term funding for road repair, including $1 billion for the current fiscal year. Most of the funding will go toward local

Can Republicans fix labor law? Their new converts might insist

By Daniel Kishi
American Compass

At Amazon's JFK8 warehouse on Staten Island, workers voted to unionize in April 2022. More than three years later, they still don't have a contract.

Their experience is emblematic: Nearly half of newly-formed unions fail to secure a contract within a year of winning an election. After two years, a full third remain without one. Many never succeed at all.

The tactic of delay rarely makes headlines, but it strikes at the core of U.S. labor law. A right delayed into irrelevance is no right at all. When organizing leads nowhere, cynicism takes root, and the entire system loses credibility. Fixing this problem ought to be the kind of reform that could earn support from across the political spectrum — and now it does.

The Faster Labor Contracts Act (FLCA) was introduced in the Senate in March by Sens. Josh Hawley (R-Mo.), Cory Booker (D-N.J.), Bernie Moreno (R-Ohio), Gary Peters (D-Mich.), and Jeff Merkley (D-Ore.). Last month, Reps. Donald Norcross (D-N.J.) and Pete Stauber (R-Minn.) introduced companion legislation in the House of Representatives, an effort that has garnered 11 Republican cosponsors.

It's the first time in recent memory that labor reform legislation has been both bipartisan and bicameral. For a policy issue long thought to be irreparably polarized, this coalition reflects an emerging recognition that labor law must work better for American workers and that Republicans have a role to play in that renewal.

Saddled with a legal framework barely updated since the Great Depression, unions have seen their membership collapse from more than a third of private-sector workers in the early 1950s to less than 6 percent today. Bargaining power has withered. And the principle that workers should have a seat at the table has gradually been reduced to rhetoric.

Despite widespread acknowledgment that the system is broken, Congress has failed to act.

Republicans have largely celebrated organized labor's decline, while Democrats have focused on maximalist overhauls that allow them to posture but have no chance of becoming law.

In both 2019 and 2021, a Democratic House passed the Protecting the Right to Organize (PRO) Act, a sweeping package of labor reforms supported by unions and progressive activists, only for it to languish in the Senate, despite Democratic control of the chamber for the entirety of Joe Biden's presidency.

Unions deserve love from labor laws

Viewpoint

By Sharon Block & Benjamin Sachs

More now than any time in recent memory, there is widespread bipartisan support in Congress and across America for the right to be in a union.

Unions are as popular now as they have ever been and they're even receiving support from Republicans in Congress like Missouri Sen. Josh Hawley. Yet the labor law that's currently on the books — the Wagner Act of 1935 — isn't strong enough to protect workers who want to unionize.

The basic problem is straightforward: Employers don't want

'Building a labor law that actually enables workers to form unions requires a lot more than tinkering with the existing systems'

their workers to unionize and are generally willing to fire union supporters to stop a union drive. That means that trying to form a union means risking your job, which is a risk that most workers rationally don't want to take.

That's especially true when the law is too weak to provide recourse to pro-union workers who do get fired.

The combination of hostile managers and weak labor laws equals very low unionization rates — in fact, the share of workers who are in a union is below what it was before we had any labor laws.

These low union rates account for a great deal of economic and political inequality that plagues American life.

Building a labor law that actually enables workers to form unions requires a lot more than tinkering with the existing systems. Regardless of party, lawmakers who are serious about making sure workers have a clear path to joining a union need to support reforms more fundamental than any we've seen since the New Deal.

These changes would take a two-step approach to tackling the root problems with organizing a union. First, make it easier for workers to unionize and win a collective bargaining agreement even if their employers oppose those efforts; and second, reduce the incentives for employers to fight union organizing drives in the first place.

To accomplish the first goal, Congress must increase penalties on employers that fire pro-union workers, limit employers' ability to engage in union busting, and change the rules of collective bargaining to make it more likely that

The shutdown’s shambles

The ongoing federal government shutdown, which began on Oct. 1, isn’t just having an effect on federal workers who are furloughed and American citizens who might be denied services with unanswered phone calls or office visits to government agencies.

Federal workers are supposed to still get paid, retroactively and eventually, under an act of Congress adopted several years ago – a law which President Trump has threatened to ignore. But during this shutdown, thousands of building trades union workers around the nation cannot make up lost employment opportunities on federal jobs because of the nature of the industry.

Although Republicans control all three branches of government in Washington, D.C., the threat of a Democratic-filibuster in the Senate has held up support for the budget because of the devastating effects the budget would have on health care costs.

Following is a synopsis of some of the pertinent reactions by union leaders to the federal shutdown.

North Americas Building Trades Union President Sean McGarvey: “Unlike Members of Congress, building trades workers only get paid when they show up to work. This chaos threatens their livelihoods. If they cannot work, they do not get paid. Lawmakers need to remember: memes do not pay the bills. Political games and social media fights do not build projects or keep families afloat. Shutdowns, delays, and cancellations deliver only chaos, and our members are the victims of Washington’s dysfunction and chaos culture.

“The shutdown and job cancellations are creating chaos and uncertainty for America’s construction workforce. As of this morning (Oct. 3), with more unnecessary job cancellations and delays threatening to further divide us as a nation, roughly $28 billion in federal funding is being withdrawn from dozens of states across the country.

“Over 300 Department of Energy project awards have been canceled, and major transportation projects are now also threatened in major hubs like New York and Illinois. These are not headlines or talking points; these targeted actions attack the jobs of blue-collar workers and create deeper construction industry market instability in both red and blue states. Real jobs and real paychecks are in jeopardy from these devastating blows to American workers and their families.”

IBEW International President Kenneth W. Cooper, commenting on the government shutdown and the resulting Department of Energy project cancellations: “Since the government shut down, President Trump has made no secret that he wants to create pain for ordinary Americans in ‘blue states.’ But the truth is, he’s harming all Americans. The more than $25 billion in canceled energy and transportation investments over the last few days have locked out thousands of IBEW members and jeopardized America’s energy future and global competitiveness.

“Together with the unlawful taking of government funding and his year-long campaign of threatening federal workers’ livelihoods, the president’s actions have caused lasting pain for members, their families, and the American public.”

AFL-CIO President Liz Shuler: “President Trump and his administration chose chaos and pain over responsible governing. Now, countless jobs, the essential government services we all rely on and the economy powered by our workforce are in jeopardy—all because the administration wants to take one more swing at wrecking the Affordable Care Act and throwing working people off our health care.

“Hundreds of thousands of federal workers are being locked out and stand to lose the paychecks their families depend on. Federal contractors, including custodians and cafeteria workers, won’t have the assurance of back pay.”

can,” said Nicole. “I don’t do it for the recognition. I do it so that each sister after me can know they too can do it and maybe their path can be a little easier to follow their dreams.”

When announcing the inaugural awards in 2020, NABTU President Sean McGarvey said, “These tradeswomen heroes are exemplary building trades’ members and represent our affiliate unions to the highest degree. They are role models and trailblazers and reflect what we love and honor about our workforce.” (Text courtesy Andy J. Egan Co.)

CEOs show us how to raise everyone’s pay

By Jim Hightower
Here’s a progressive idea I picked up from the unlikelyst of sources: Corporate CEOs!

For decades, these chieftains of our economic order have been steadily implementing a very visionary process for establishing corporate wage levels. The essence of it is this: Let the workers set their own pay! Since the 1970s, when the idea began taking hold in Corporate America, pay levels have zoomed up by more than 1,000 percent.

from lack of room for equipment, outmoded and inadequate space, poor heating and cooling systems, and even infestations.

Public safety leaders have been advocating for new facilities for decades. Many of the departments have been housed in the aging City Hall building downtown, which itself is being relocated in a separate project.

The Public Safety Building will include a new fire department headquarters and the fire marshal’s office, the city’s police station, large meeting rooms for use of the Police and Fire departments and the public, a district court with four courtrooms and associated offices and support spaces, and a temporary lockup to support booking and arraignment. On the same campus will be located a stand-alone replacement Fire Station No. 9 and a fire training facility to support 30 cadets per class.

“We are going to ensure that we are worthy of your support,” Lansing Fire Chief Brian Sturdivant said, addressing the community support of the bond issue. “That we are worthy of your confidence as we continue to strive for world-class customer service in this community.” He said “a project of this scope speaks to the need of our facilities related to not only the workspace, but the home place of our public safety members. For our firefighters, it is not only where they work, but where they live.”

Lansing Police Chief Ellery Sosebee also thanked the voters at last year’s groundbreaking ceremony for their support “Our first responders have a job that demands personal sacrifice, bravery and heroism. They need a safe, reliable workplace with secure communications and devices and technology designed for the work that they do every day.

“This journey will end with a brand new state of the art, efficient, effective and well-deserved public safety/district court complex for our employees.”

BUILDING MICHIGAN!

A case of shingles

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

By Marty Mulcahy

THE H.M. REYNOLDS Asphalt Shingle Co. plant, as shown in 1917, was located at 637 W. Grant St. in Grand Rapids, south of downtown. Reynolds began mass-producing asphalt shingles here in 1915, and it was initially a major player in the asphalt shingle business as the fire-averse federal government advised builders to move away from wooden shingles. This building has been demolished.

Photo credit: University of Michigan

Behold the ubiquitous asphalt roofing shingle – time-tested, long-lasting, architecturally appealing, and where their use is appropriate, recognized as a near-peerless alternative to keep rain and snow out of our nation’s homes and businesses.

And asphalt shingles were likely invented in Michigan. Who knew?

“The first asphalt shingles were produced in 1903 by a roofing contractor and manufacturer of prepared asphalt roofing,” says a history prepared by the National Parks Service titled Asphalt Shingles – Roofing for Historic Buildings. “Henry M. Reynolds of Grand Rapids, Michigan, hand-cut rolls of ‘stone surfaced’ roll roofing into individual shingles. Early shingles were typically rectangular or hexagonal. The colors, usually red, green or black, were limited by the natural materials used for the granular surface.”

With Reynolds’ invention taking off in the building marketplace, the use of asphalt shingles to cover the nation’s roofs never looked back. But of course, the worldwide history of dwellings included a litany of roofing materials, including wooden shingles, thatch, masonry – or whatever material was available to local builders.

In an article in Asphalt Magazine, “Roofing 101,” writer Mike Anderson, said the 19th Century history and evolution of modern roofing materials is tied with the evolution of the use of petroleum products.

“In the early days of the 1800s in the United States, before asphalt shingles were invented, roofers would often lay fabric in place and coat the fabric with a sticky substance like pine tar,” Anderson wrote. In the 1840s, he said a technique learned from a roofer in Newark became the basis for a roofing business begun in Cincinnati by Samuel M. and Cyrus M. Warren.

“The method used by the Warrens involved the use of heavy paper, covered with pine tar and sprinkled with sand,” Anderson wrote. “In 1847, the Warrens elected to use coal tar – which was a waste byproduct for the gas light industry – to replace the more costly pine tar in their roofing system.”

Coal tar was initially considered just a byproduct with little useful value, but in roofing materials the developing petrochemical industry found a more lucrative outlet for its use. As the supply of coal tar diminished and prices rose, the roofing industry looked for another source of adhesive material for their roofing systems. The Warrens, Anderson said, continued to be a leader in roofing product development, finding that a certain type of asphalt extracted and processed from the island of Trinidad in the southern Caribbean could effectively be blended with domestic byproducts of oil refining, to produce an easy-to-mix roofing pitch.

Later, the post-Civil War boom in the nation’s petroleum refining industry led to the manufacture of an abundant domestic asphalt mix that could serve as a substitute for coal tar in roofing systems.

“By the close of the century,” Anderson said. “compo-

These are not an untried experiment. We are the ORIGINAL MAKERS of Flexible Asphalt Slate Shingles and tested our product for ten years before putting it on the general market. Right here, in Grand Rapids, where climatic changes are extreme, our shingles, after ten years' exposure to every kind of weather, look as good as the day they were nailed on. No wonder we can GUARANTEE them to you for 10 years! With such a long-lived, attractive roof possible, it surely will be unwise to waste your money in buying quick-rotting wood shingles, which catch fire from the first spark, and equally unwise to pay exorbitant prices for heavy slate or similar materials.

Reynolds Asphalt Shingles are uniform in size—8 in. x 12 in. and are laid 4 in. to the weather. They are made of pure asphalt, covered with finely crushed slate or granite pressed in under tremendous pressure. Your building supply or lumber dealer can secure these shingles for you. THE APRIL 1912 edition of the magazine House Beautiful featured an ad by the Grand Rapids-based Reynolds Asphalt Shingle Co. Reynolds is generally recognized as the shingle’s inventor. Today, according to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, 80 percent of roofs in the U.S. are covered with asphalt shingles.

sition roofing products used in roofing for all types of buildings were mostly made using cotton-based, ‘rag’ felts, which were saturated by petroleum asphalt and surfaced with ‘slate’ chips – the predecessor of the asphalt shingle.”

Enter Grand Rapids roofer Henry Reynolds, said an article in Roofing Today magazine, whose first shingle iteration “was hand-cut 8-inch by 16-inch asphalt-saturated rolls topped with stones – a bold departure from fire-prone wood shingles.”

Roofing Today said the industry quickly improved on Reynolds’ shingle. “In the 1910s, mechanization streamlined the process of cutting individual shingles from continuous ribbons of asphalt-saturated felt. Mass production and ease of transportation made this alternative to wood and slate roofing products more affordable. In the 1920s, the first strip shingle saw the light of day. In the ‘50s, the roofing industry standardized the three-tab format.”

The National Parks Service said the popularity of asphalt shingles led to a proliferation of shapes and sizes, as well as roof attachment systems, some of which were patented. “The multi-tab strip shingle,” the NPS said, “was a significant development that quickly emerged. It offered the traditional effect of a small shingle with lower installation costs.”

“Numerous factors contributed to the increased use of asphalt shingles in the 20th Century,” said the National Parks Service. “Made of non-strategic materials and easier to transport than wood or slate, they met the constraints imposed during World War I. More flame resistant than wood, they were promoted in response to a 1916 publication of the National Board of Fire Underwriters urging the elimination of wood shingles as a fire hazard. Additionally, asphalt shingles gained a cost advantage over other materials. As improvements in manufacturing processes made asphalt shingles cheaper, increased labor costs made installation of traditional materials more expensive.”

The variety of shingle shapes and sizes stabilized by 1930, and by 1935 all major manufacturers were offering a 12x36-inch multiple tab shingle that is the standard today. At the same time the introduction of ceramic granules allowed a wider range of color choices that were often mixed to produce a blended shingle.

The most significant recent change in the product itself is the replacement of organic felts with fiberglass mats resulting in a stronger, more durable shingle.

IKO Global, a top roofing material manufacturer, offered its own version of the history of roofing. “Who invented the asphalt shingle? Technically, it was Henry Reynolds of Grand Rapids, Michigan, who took a roll of roofing material and cut it into the first shingles in 1903. However, the history of asphalt shingles is not one of a single person’s accomplishment. Instead, a series of roofers, manufacturers and outside organizations all contributed to the development of the asphalt shingle as we know it today.

“They all tried to improve roofing materials in the face of rain, wind, hail, and other environmental threats.”

Public records of Reynolds are scant, several websites don’t agree on when he left the business or the year he died.

The company he founded was acquired in 1963 by the GAF Corp., which purchased the business from Reynolds’ son.

Today GAF is the nation’s largest manufacturer of roofing materials.

roads. Here is a partial breakdown of spending for fiscal year 2026, including the top three recipients:

- State trunkline: $179.7 million
 - Cities/villages: $246.1 million
 - Counties: $456.7 million
- Rail, bus, infrastructure, and airport projects also were allocated more money.

Passage of the total $51.8 billion state budget was brutally difficult. The biggest loser in the deal was the state’s cannabis industry, which will see a 24 percent tax hike on its products, which is expected to be the primary source of the new road money. Budget cuts and revenue from other taxes also will now go toward the roads.

“I ran for office in large part because I wanted to fix the damn roads,” said Gov. Gretchen Whitmer. “Over the past seven years, we’ve made historic progress, fixing 24,500 lane-miles and 1,900 bridges. With this budget, we’re locking in a significant, bipartisan investment to fix state and local roads for decades to come, creating and protecting thousands of jobs in the process. I’m proud to deliver on my promise and look forward to driving on safer, smoother roads long after my time as governor.”

The budget was adopted easily in a bipartisan manner in both the House and Senate.

“This budget proves government can be responsible with taxpayer dollars while still delivering the resources our families, students, and communities depend on,” said House Appropriations Chair Ann Bollin (R-Brighton).

The roads portion of the budget anticipates income of $420 million a year from the new marijuana tax, which will begin in January. Another large chunk, $688 million in 2025 and up to $1 billion by 2028, will come from a carve-out of corporate taxes, including delays of some anticipated tax breaks.

State lawmakers also agreed to swap the 6 percent state sales tax that motorists pay at the pump with an equivalent increase in the state gas tax. They ensured that the gas tax revenue goes directly to road repair without increasing the price per gallon for consumers.

“Senate Democrats worked across the aisle to get the job done and deliver another responsible budget that boosts public education, invests in our aging roads, and protects access to health care, all while mitigating the worst effects of the devastating federal cuts. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of state legislatures in this critical, tenuous moment,” said Senate Majority Leader Winnie Brinks (D-Grand Rapids). “From continuing the widely successful universal school meals program to striking a sustainable, long-term roads deal, this bipartisan budget underscores our unwavering commitment to Michigan schools, families, and local communities.”

legislation like the PRO Act as a political cudgel, a performative litmus test – “Oh, you’re pro-worker? Then why aren’t you a cosponsor of the PRO Act?” – and a reliable tool for raising small-dollar donations from the left. The strategy was clear: Wait for an even wider partisan window (or the abolishment of the legislative filibuster) and attempt to steamroll reform across the finish line. That strategy failed. The result: Labor reform has remained politically untouchable and substantively inert.

But times are changing. The Republican Party today draws its strength not from boardrooms and donor retreats, but from working-class Americans. These voters – truck drivers, waiters, welders, and electricians – once anchored the Democratic coalition. No longer. Since 2016, they have found a new home in the GOP. And if Republicans hope to keep them, they must legislate with their interests in mind. That requires more than talk of the “dignity of work.” It means doing what Democrats could not: update America’s ossified labor law.

The FLCA addresses a key weakness in existing law: the inability of many newly certified unions to secure a first contract. When workers vote to join a union, their employer is legally obligated to bargain in good faith. But too often that promise proves meaningless. Employers drag out negotiations as enthusiasm wanes, turnover rises, and the employer moves to decertify the fledgling union. For many workers, a win at the ballot box leads nowhere. What should mark the beginning of collective bargaining instead becomes the end.

The FLCA establishes a clear timeline for reaching a first contract. Employers must begin bargaining within 10 days of union certification. If no agreement is reached within 90 days, the parties enter mediation. If mediation fails after 30 more days, a three-person arbitration panel – composed of one representative from each side and one neutral member selected by mutual agreement – is empowered to impose a binding two-year contract. Some critics may object that it imposes terms by fiat, but the structure mirrors common dispute-resolution models already used in both labor and commercial arbitration. Crucially, it only applies to the first contract; future bargaining remains in the hands of employers and workers.

The process doesn’t favor labor over management. It simply ensures that bargaining can’t be stalled into irrelevance. The law already requires employers to negotiate; this legislation would ensure that they actually do, and that the process results in a contract rather than a stalemate.

Tellingly, this proposal originated in the PRO Act, but went nowhere when shackled to progressives’ unpopular demands. In a March 2025 survey, American Compass and YouGov tested constituent provisions of the PRO Act, and found that the first-contract arbitration process was among the most popular, with a net favorability of +40, including majority support among Republicans (+29) and overwhelming support among younger Republicans (+44).

Other provisions such as clearer notification of organizing rights and harsher penalties for employers that violate those rights were also broadly popular and may be next in line for bipartisan action. Controversial provisions that were preventing progress will fall by the wayside, as they should.

The FLCA won’t fix every problem in labor law, but it would be an important step in the right direction. If Republicans want to prove they can govern for the working class, this is their chance. And if Congress can pass a version of it, it may signal that a new labor politics – rooted in negotiation, not partisanship – is finally within reach.

“Most human beings have an almost infinite capacity for taking things for granted.”

–Yugoslav Proverb

“Not the power to remember, but its very opposite, the power to forget, is a necessary condition for our existence.”

– Sholem Asch (1880 - 1957)

“Truth is tough. It will not break, like a bubble, at a touch; nay, you may kick it about all day like a football, and it will be round and full at evening.”

–Oliver Wendell Holmes (1809 - 1894)

Just joking

My wife just left me. She says life revolves around football and she's sick of it.

That made me quite upset. I mean, after all, we were together for 7 seasons.

“I used to work in a fire hydrant factory. You couldn't park anywhere near the place.”

Nurse: “I'm sorry, but your wife signed a “do not resuscitate” form.

Me: “But I'm here to get treated for a sprained ankle!”

Nurse: “I'm afraid she insisted.”

I was walking past the YMCA building this morning and a teenage boy was outside, stroking some feathers. I said, “young man, there's no need to feel down.”

Unions deserve love from labor laws

workers can win a contract. Many of these proposals are contained in the Protect the Right to Organize (PRO) Act, which passed the House twice when Democrats last controlled the chamber, but has languished in the Senate.

Passing the PRO Act is just the start, however. One powerful idea would be to “flip the default.” Rather than assuming (as we do under current law) that workers want to be nonunion, we could start with the equally plausible assumption that workers want to be union.

In such a system, we’d still hold union elections. But, like in politics where voters choose between representatives, workers would vote on which union they want to represent them – not whether they want representation. And to ensure real freedom of choice, workers could run organizing campaigns to get rid of union representation altogether – if that’s what they prefer.

Labor law can also help reduce the reasons employers oppose unionization in the first place by changing the way unions and employers bargain contracts. Currently, workers in the U.S. who want to form a union must do so at their individual workplace or their individual employer. For example, if McDonald’s workers want a union, they’d have to organize one at a single McDonald’s restaurant. But if that McDonald’s is the only fast-food restaurant in the area to be unionized, then it likely would need to pay its workers more in wages and benefits than its local competitors.

But in many developed economies, unions organize and bargain across an entire industry, not individual businesses. In this sectoral bargaining regime, no firm in a market is disadvantaged by being union because every firm in the market is covered by the union contract. Thus, no firm needs to see their workers’ organizing as an existential threat to their ability to compete.

Labor law reform, moreover, can’t just be about private sector workers, especially given the critical role that public employees have played in the labor movement. Congress therefore needs to fix a loophole in our laws that President Donald Trump has exploited to weaken federal unions. Using what was supposed to be a narrow exception for workers on the front lines of national security, Trump has denied almost 1 million federal employees collective bargaining rights.

Any new labor law reform should include a new and clearer exception that is limited to just those workers traditionally excluded from the federal sector collective bargaining system – those working for the CIA, NSA, DEA, subdivisions of the Defense Department and the Treasury, and other employees in the intelligence field.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY

REPRESENTING BUILDING TRADES

BROTHERS & SISTERS OVER 35 YEARS

BIESKE & ASSOCIATES

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denies approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorneys J.B. Bieske and Jennifer Alfonsi have 55 years combined experience representing only Social Security disability clients. And they personally meet with all clients and appear themselves at all court hearings. Many large firms assign inexperienced attorneys to your case. And some of these firms are located thousands of miles away and only file the attorney in the day of the court hearing. Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi have vast experience before local Michigan judges.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi can often make a winning difference at the application stage. And, if an appeal is necessary they have won several hundred cases before a court date is even set.

Those denied can appeal on their own but statistics for many years reveal that those represented by attorneys win a much higher percentage of appeals. And attorneys who specialize in Social Security Disability cases win a much higher percentage yet.

In addition to practicing only Social Security disability law attorney Bieske has written a book for attorneys about the subject and has been interviewed on various television programs. Both attorney Bieske and Alfonsi have also been interviewed on radio programs and have given speeches to many groups.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi offer free phone or office consultation. If they represent you, there will be no fee charged until after the case is won. The fee is a percentage of retroactive benefits.

Bieske and Alfonsi represent clients from all over the state of Michigan. They maintain offices in Sterling Heights, Livonia, Southgate and Novi. Call them at 1-800-331-3530 for a free consultation if you have been denied, or if you are thinking of possibly applying for Social Security benefits.

In Closing: I want to finish by saying thank you to all who attended the Unity Dinner that we hosted at our hall last Saturday. I know we won't all agree on all issues and politics. The one thing I think we can agree on is that our political system is broken. We need to concentrate on the issues that are most important to us and our survival as a Labor Union.

The one thing I was always told is VOTE your wallet and keep the social issues out of politics. God Bless Local 671 and its members.

COOPERSVILLE – THE MONTHLY MEMBERSHIP MEETING will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 4, 2025 at 7:00pm in our Assembly Hall at 1008 O'Malley Dr in Coopersville. The front office will remain open until 6:55pm.

ATTENTION: This paper is to serve as the official notice to the membership.

The Retiree Breakfast: will still be held Thursday, Nov. 6, 2025 at 9am at New Beginnings Restaurant in Coopersville.

Union Strong Phone App: If you have not downloaded our app and would like to, reach out to the front office for the link or QR code.

Plumbing Law Changes: Starting March 20, 2025, anyone performing plumbing work in Michigan must either be registered and in good standing with the State as a plumbing apprentice or hold a current journeyman or master plumbing license. The new legislation also establishes a ratio of one journeyman for every two apprentices, with significant penalties, including steep fines and the suspension or revocation of a plumbing contractor's license for non-compliance.

This is excellent news for our industry and presents a great opportunity to expand our market share in West Michigan. Make sure that your license or apprentice registration is up to date with the State. If your license has expired or you need to register as an apprentice, you must contact the State Licensing Division at 517-241-9316.

Contract Ratification: At the special called meeting on July 1, the members voted to accept the bargaining committee's recommendation and ratify the new three-year collective bargaining agreement. The new agreement is as follows:
1st year $4.20/ 2nd year $3.30/ 3rd year $3.30
$10.80 over 3 years.

Language changes: Section 13.2 - reduces the number from issuing orders from 4 to 2 to receive foremen pay.

Section 10.2 - Health care will be on hours paid not hours worked.

*The contractors will now be administering the ESTA benefit.

Organizing Update: “We're all doing the same work, we're just not all getting the same wages and benefits!” I say this about 5 times a day, when I speak to the nonunion worker, but the bigger message and the one that I want them to know is “You need a contract!” We at 174 have a contract; the nonunion workers have a handbook that can change whenever the employer sees fit! The handbook benefits the employer, NOT the employee! Every worker that does what we do deserves a contract! When we talk to the workers about what we get - wages, pension, a CONTRACT...we are educating them and hopefully this will encourage them to start something right where they are working! Brothers and sisters lets continue to fight for the worker!

Better wages, benefits, insurance you don't have to pay for, and a defined pension – the message is clear; all workers deserve a UNION! Work safe, Johnny Ortiz: (616) 307-8551

Hiring Rule Reminder: As per section 5.8 of the CBA, the 50/50 hiring provision applies only to jobs working under the Local CBA. Any national agreement jobs calling for manpower are not eligible for the 50/50 provision.

Contact Information: If you need to change or verify your contact information, PLEASE CONTACT THE UNION OFFICE as soon as possible so we can keep our system up to date.

IBEW LOCAL 557

IBEW Local 557

SAGINAW – UNION NEWS- The next Local 557 Union Meeting will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 4 at 6:00pm.

APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM BUILDING – Sadly, the Local’s apprenticeship program suffered a setback on Sept. 17 when a fire broke out at our shared facility in Flint. The building suffered a massive amount of damage and is left unusable at this time. An investigation into the fire is still progressing. In the meantime, the Flint/Saginaw Apprenticeship program has pivoted to having classes as much as possible at the two Union Halls in Flint and Saginaw. Current apprentices in the program should be on the lookout for communications from the school with possible updates to class schedules as we navigate through a difficult time.

SAGINAW TWP. SCHOOL BOND – Saginaw Twp. Schools will be asking voters to “Vote Yes” on Nov. 4 for a $169 Million Bond. The bond will go towards important infrastructure upgrades to all the facilities. Some of the upgrades have been sorely needed for a very long time. Local 557 has been involved in helping this pass and will continue to help with the fight and get the word out. We need as much help as we can get. If you are township resident, please pick up a “Vote Yes” sign to display in your yard.

If you are comfortable helping in other ways, please reach out to the Hall for more information. Meetings will continue to be held leading up the election. The work created from this important bond initiative should be great work for IBEW members.

SAGINAW SPIRIT GAMES ARE BACK – Local 557 has again sponsored the Saginaw Spirit through the Labor-Management Committee. Season tickets will continue to be given away at Union meetings for the remainder of the season. The Local has 3 more dates reserved with a large quantity of tickets that will be made available as we get closer to those games. Upcoming games with blocks of tickets and the Eagle’s Nest are on Jan. 10, Feb. 22, and March 14.

JOB SITE SAFETY is and should always be #1 on all IBEW jobs. No deadline or profit should be placed ahead of the simple fact that members need to go to work and return home in the same safe state in which they were prior to their day of work. All members should be as diligent as possible when it comes to making sure work is completed in a safe manner.

EARNED SICK TIME ACT- Michigan’s new law requiring employers to pay their employees Earned Sick Time (ESTA), is now in effect. All members working in the State of Michigan have rights to utilize this law. Recently, a decision was made through the Michigan Court system to DISMISS a lawsuit filed by the Michigan Chapter of NECA. An appeal was possible but not filed. Therefore, members may now 100% go forward and utilize this benefit as intended. Members should see something tracking these hours and start using their hours should be eligible to do so. If you are experiencing any issues regarding this matter, please visit the Local’s website and follow the link to the State of Michigan’s site to file a complaint or contact the Union Hall for help.

LOCAL 557 EXPANSION – If you have not heard, Local 557 has purchased the property directly to the west of our Union Hall. This purchase will help with the ongoing parking problems we have seen recently due to the Local’s increase in membership. Closing on the property occurred at the end of September and by the end of October we should take ownership 100%. This is definitely an exciting time at the Local. With that expansion, we’ll be looking for volunteers to help oversee the expansion. If you are interested, please reach out.

LOCAL 557 ORGANIZING- With work being very solid in Local 557 (and throughout the State), organizing is as important as ever. Local contractors are continuing to do the traditional work in the area on top of the Mega Projects. These projects are extremely important to the Local and we need to do everything we can to keep manning that work. Whether work in the Hemlock area continues for a prolonged period or not, it is vitally important to keep all other work of the IBEW in mind. Moving forward, Local 557 will be focusing hard on keeping these projects successful. The future of the Local depends on this work.

Rex and Gus are doing great work for Local 557 on the organizing front. Organizing is a tough task in the IBEW and in the trades in general. Some conversations with unrepresented workers are harder than others. Please give Rex and Gus all the help they need to succeed and get results for the Local. If you see something and wish to point it out to them, please reach out to Rex at 989-890-4578 and Gus can be reached at 989-941-8046.

PROJECT PHOENIX- Work on the Mega Project remains steady but is beginning to slow. As of this writing, there are currently over 323 IBEW members referred to the project. Calls have slowed for the project. Stay current on monitoring work in Local 557 by looking on the Job Line website or calling the dispatch telephone option. This is updated throughout the day to provide the latest information regarding calls when they are being filled. If you are on Book 2, please reach out to the Local through the jobline@ibew557.org email address and you will receive a reply as soon as possible. Through the jobline email address, you can receive updates as to your spot on the out of work list.

MEMBERSHIP MEETINGS- The next membership meeting is November 4th and will start at 6:00pm.

UNION HALL OPERATIONS- Normal Business Hours are Monday-Friday 7am to 12pm, CLOSED for lunch, and re-open again from 1pm to 4:30pm. Please make a note of this as this change has recently gone into effect to better serve the members due to the surge in manpower running through the Local.

BOOK SIGNING- If you are a Local 557 member and receive a lay-off while working on a 557 referral, you must come to the hall and sign Book 1 in-person. Many Locals throughout the State of Michigan will continue to accept fax/email initial book signings. If you are interested in this reciprocated benefit and would like to be on some out-of-town Books, please call the hall to arrange this. Book 2 members can have their Union Hall send an email to either jobline@ibew557.org or wreck@ibew557.org.

WORK OUTLOOK- Members of other Locals can sign Book 2 by contacting their Hall for a simple email to be sent on your behalf, if in good standing. Project Phoenix is ramping down at this point. Breckenridge Solar for J. Ranck is nearly manned-up. Local contractors continue to work on various projects at schools, hospitals, auto plants, and other various jobs. Help will be needed going forward but as substantial as earlier this year.

BLUE CROSS APP-Download the Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan app for your smartphone. Search for “BCBSM” on the Google Play app or Apple store. Benefits to utilizing the app include the following: instant access to EOB’s, a virtual ID card on your phone, information on deductibles, explanations of coverage and other helpful tips related to your Health Care coverage. EOB’s can be downloaded to smart phones or computers and used to substantiate WEX receipt request.

JOB CALLS- Please stay vigilant checking the Job Line if you are seeking work. All work calls for the day will be available on the Job Line after 4:30 pm. IF YOU ARE SEEKING WORK don’t forget to CALL 989-781-0516, option 3. Local 557 utilizes a bid system for job calls. If you see a call you would like please place a bid on the telephone system and call backs will occur the next business day to fill the calls until they are gone.

STAY CURRENT ON DUES –Please check to see if you are current. The Hall can accept credit cards. The credit card service can accept payments for dues, merchandise, apprentice book payments and other purchases. There is a convenience fee for the service. You can pay for these purchases over the phone.

Message from the Business Manager. Please be your Brothers' and Sisters' keeper on our jobsites. This is a saying that is often tossed around but we really need to be vigilant in performing that task. In my opinion, there is not a more dangerous job on the planet than what we do every day as Union Electricians. We take that for granted at times in our industry. The most important responsibility we have each and every day is not only making sure we go home safe to our families but our Brothers and Sisters do as well. Please be Safe!

Work Report. The work report in our jurisdiction continues to be very strong. Many calls have been very difficult to find the amount of help needed. Calls that may require additional manpower include:

Thiel Electric and KLA Laboratories are finishing up the K wing remodel at Delta College. Motor City Electric continues to work on the new line at Bay City's GM Powertrain site. They will continue to hire for this project. Nelson Electric and Superior Electric also have ongoing projects at Powertrain.

AZCO continues work at Consumers Energy's Karn Solar site in Essexville. Calls have begun to come in and will continue through the fall.

Van Ert Electric has begun work at their solar project in Gladwin and more calls are expected.

Van Herweg Electric has completed the buildout of Parlor Doughnuts in Bay City.

J. Ranck Electric has completed work at SK Siltron semiconductor chip manufacturing facility and is also nearing completion on their 250MW Mission Road Solar project in Rosebush. Countyline Power has ongoing work at the Bay City and Mt. Pleasant Water Treatment facilities and Harrisville Pumpstations. Countyline Power has also a high voltage termination project at Michigan Sugar in Bay City.

Clements Electric's Work on the Midland Center for the Arts and Dow Gardens Welcome Center continues. Work at Bay County Health Facility has begun. Another housing complex in Auburn is also underway.

Conti Electric has projects that are ramping up inside the I-Park (Dow) and ongoing work at the Karn Generation Facility. Escon Group is ramping up work within the I-Park.

Ted's Electric has work in Mt. Pleasant and Clare Schools. Bay Valley Electric has work at Bay Valley Resort.

Zone 2 ACC's dorm project is likely to go fair as union shops submitted the two lowest bids.

John's Electric has secured a considerable amount of work in Alpena Schools and a nice project at Bay View Park. John's work at CMU Tower was stalled following the storms but will pick back up soon along with new hangers at Alpena Airport. Clements Electric has some work at the Oscoda airbase. Swan Electric has secured a decent project at TCE Charlton in Johannesburg. Hardie's Electric has ongoing work in Cheboygan. S & G Electric has hired another Journeyman for multiple projects across the northern jurisdiction. Northern Valley continues work at the Holcim Cement Plant and Oscoda's Air Base, as well as many smaller projects and service calls.

We do need some wiremen to man our local work or market share will be lost. Open calls continue to be available on a weekly basis. We saw this scenario play out in our past, let us not repeat our mistakes. Rest assured, your organizers will be working diligently to fill all open calls with qualified hands by any means necessary. If you are looking for work, please do not hesitate to contact the Union Hall. Please note when calling the job line to use Ext. 1. In Solidarity,
Ryan Charney

Laborers Local 1191
(2161 West Grand Boulevard, Detroit, MI 48208)

DETROIT – Get Out to Vote in the 2025 Municipal General Election (November 4, 2025). YOUR VOTE COUNTS!!

Methods and requirements for voter registration depend on the following deadlines: If there are 15+ days before an election, voters can register online, by mail, or in person. Within 14 days of an election, and on Election Day, voters may only register by visiting their local clerk’s office to register in person with proof of residency documentation. Voters can check their voter registration status and look up their local clerk information at <https://www.michigan.gov/vote>.

Vote in-person on Election Day (Nov. 4, 2025): At your local polling location. Please visit <https://www.michigan.gov/vote> to find your local polling location.

In order to vote in person, voters will need to either bring photo ID (or an alternate acceptable ID) or sign an affidavit verifying their identity and stating they are not in possession of picture ID at the polling site. Affidavits can be challenged if there is a reason to disbelieve a voter’s attestation. If someone is found to have lied on such an affidavit, their vote is thrown out. It is illegal to lie on such an affidavit, and the voter will also face legal consequences.

LABORERS RISING: Laborers Rising is a powerful initiative focused on building power and making a difference with our fellow sisters and brothers. From the Michigan DNR

Deer hunters taking part in Michigan's Oct. 1-Nov. 14 archery season could see a strong statewide harvest, even as they encounter varying conditions – from the results of heavy snowfall in parts of the Upper Peninsula to an outbreak of epizootic hemorrhagic disease in the southern Lower Peninsula.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources' newly published 2025 deer hunting preview indicates this year's deer harvest could be strong overall – mirroring a robust 2024 – but that hunters should be aware of several factors.

In addition to the potential for lower deer numbers in high-snowfall areas of the U.P. and the ongoing EHD outbreak in the southern Lower Peninsula, the devastating March 2025 ice storm in the northern Lower Peninsula could affect hunters as well.

“Overall, the 2024 deer season was a pretty good one, with hunter participation and deer harvest all generally steady or increasing from the prior year,” said Brent Rudolph, the deer, elk and moose management specialist for the DNR's Wildlife Division. “Variability within each region occurs every year, but for 2025 the wild cards include the borderline severe winter conditions in the U.P., potential ice storm impacts on access to hunting locations in the northern Lower Peninsula and the ongoing EHD outbreak in the southern Lower Peninsula. Hunters always benefit from being prepared, and these are extra factors to look out for this year.”

EHD is caused by a virus transmitted to white-tailed deer by a biting midge (or small fly). The disease is not sustained in the deer population, and outbreaks have not had significant long-term effects on Michigan's deer herds. But deer mortality can be intense in small areas and persist for a few years.

After being confirmed in 15 counties in 2024, EHD has been confirmed in eight counties this year as of mid-September: Calhoun, Cass, Eaton, Jackson, Lenawee, Mecosta, Van Buren and Washtenaw. EHD will likely emerge in additional southern Lower Peninsula counties until a good frost can kill off the midges that transmit the virus, Rudolph said.

The edibility of venison is not impacted by EHD, and there is no evidence humans can contract the virus either from the midge or from handling and eating venison.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, deer are not expected to be significantly impacted this year, but hunter access may be affected by the lingering effects from the 12-county ice storm.

The DNR has worked hard to clear roads and open trails, but backcountry two-tracks might remain inaccessible and hunting areas might look vastly different. Many downed trees and limbs remain in the woods, and salvage timber harvest will continue for some time.

Michigan's statewide archery deer season runs Oct. 1-Nov. 14 and Dec. 1-Jan.1, 2026. The statewide regular firearm season is Nov. 15-30, and muzzleloader season is Dec. 5-14. For more information on additional deer hunting season dates, licenses and regulations, visit the DNR's deer webpage.

Insights on Michigan's hunting season results are offered by two different sources.

For many years, the Michigan Deer Harvest Survey has been completed by mail following conclusion of the hunting seasons to estimate participation and harvest. Beginning with the 2022 season, successful Michigan deer hunters have been required to report their harvest.

Deer harvest reporting is mandatory for all successful hunters. Deer hunters are required to report their harvest within 72 hours or before transferring possession of the deer.

Upper Peninsula.

The total number of Upper Peninsula (U.P.) hunters in 2024 was similar to the prior year, but buck harvest increased compared to 2023. Hunters benefited from an extremely mild 2023-2024 winter that saw the number and condition of deer entering the season rebound following harsh conditions in the previous two years. This rebound might be slowed down in some areas this year. The 2024-2025 winter included periods of deep snow that lasted nearly long enough to be considered a severe year, though U.P. deer encountered considerably worse conditions in six out of the prior 10 years.

Fortunately, deer had favorable conditions in the U.P. during the summer of 2025. Overall, deer numbers and condition of deer in the higher snowfall zone areas might decline somewhat compared to the 2024 season. As is typically the case, the highest deer numbers in the U.P. are expected in the south-central portion, where winters are generally milder and agriculture is most prevalent.

In 2025, the DNR is conducting focused collection for CWD testing in the U.P., including deer harvested in Baraga, Chippewa, Dickinson, Houghton, Keweenaw, Luce, Mackinac, Ontonagon and Schoolcraft counties. Despite no additional cases of chronic wasting disease being detected in Dickinson County since 2018, the DNR encourages hunters to submit samples for testing in these to continue our baseline CWD surveillance. CWD testing is free for deer harvested in these counties.

Northern Lower Peninsula.

The total number of Northern Lower Peninsula hunters in 2024 was similar to the prior year, but harvest increased compared to 2023. A mild preceding winter and what looked to be good fawn production and survival heading into the season likely aided deer hunters in the region.

Total snowfall over the winter of 2024-2025 was above average through much of the region, particularly in the northwest portion. Field personnel did not observe or hear reports of substantial winter mortality, but some did indicate the impression of seeing fewer deer or fewer fawns in the spring and early summer.

In certain locations, some felt this might be directly related to poorer visibility as a result of the severe March 28-30 ice storm damage leaving many downed trees and limbs in the woods.

Where agriculture occurs in the region, spring planting dates appeared to be late but summer growing conditions were largely favorable, and many field offices reported an increase in crop damage complaints.

Soft mast (like apples and berries) and hard mast (like acorns) have been spotty. Some regions on the west side noted concerns regarding loss of beech and oak decline as a result of Beech Bark Disease, Oak Wilt and other factors. Hunters should note what local food sources are available in their areas. As deer prepare for the lean times of winter ahead, they'll focus feeding on concentrations of high-quality food – though deer movements (especially of bucks) become more unpredictable during the rut.

Hunters in areas with evidence of browse lines (areas near the ground void of vegetation on trees, shrubs and understory plants where browsing deer have heavily eaten), declining mast trees or substantial impacts from crop damage should consider harvesting an extra antlerless deer or two to help manage the deer herd and keep numbers at levels the habitat can sustain.

All hunters with a universal antlerless deer license can also take an antlerless deer during any open season in the NLP. Individuals may purchase up to 10 universal antlerless deer licenses, statewide, per license year, for $20 each.

Baiting is banned in the entire Lower Peninsula, including both public and private lands.

In 2025, the DNR is conducting focused collection for bovine tuberculosis (TB) testing in Alcona, Alpena, Cheboygan, Crawford, Iosco, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Roscommon counties. The DNR requests that hunters who harvest deer from these counties submit samples for TB testing to continue our critical monitoring efforts for the disease.

Deer harvested from anywhere else in the state can also be turned in for TB testing at the hunter's request.

Southern Lower Peninsula.

The total number of Southern Lower Peninsula hunters in 2024 was similar to the prior year. Buck harvest was also similar, but antlerless harvest increased compared to 2023. Statewide, the early and late antlerless seasons combined with the extended late antlerless season accounted for 26 percent of the total antlerless deer harvest, and these seasons (plus the January archery season during which hunters heavily emphasized antlerless harvest) were all open in the SLP. SLP hunters invested more time than hunters in other regions, averaging 14 days across all seasons.

Epizootic hemorrhagic disease (EHD) was confirmed in 15 counties in southwestern and south central Michigan in 2024 and emerged again in summer of 2025, with seven counties confirmed as of mid-September.

Outside of local areas that have experienced pronounced impacts from EHD, deer numbers remain high throughout much of the region. Routinely mild winters and abundant summer foods mean deer are rarely negatively affected by winter mortality.

Spring rains did delay planting or flood early planted crops in some areas, and summer drought stressed some crops in growing seasons, but warm weather and some beneficially timed rainfall led to largely favorable growing conditions. Many field offices reported an increase in crop damage complaints.
